

Making our own tiger prints

Zamar: "It's a tiger....roarrrr".

Jazarah: "The tiger has stripes. Red and yellow makes orange"

Jaylen: "The tiger is orange and has black"

Over the past two weeks, we have been learning about the story 'The Tiger who came to tea', we have explored the different patterns we see on different animals and looked at their similarities' and differences. Some children noticed the different colours and different styles of patterns such as stripes and spots.

The children had shared their thoughts on how the tiger is orange with black stripes. We had to make the colour orange, so the children experimented and explored the different colours that would make orange. The children worked together using a sponge and brushes to make their own large collaborative print of a tiger.
